
What is Blogging? Why People Are Getting Addicted To Blogging

Contributed by Webmaster
Saturday, 02 May 2009
Last Updated Saturday, 02 May 2009

By Sybil Carver

Over the recent years, a lot of people have grown fond of blogs and have started blogging themselves. And yet, there are still quite a number of people who ask the question, What is blogging?

I know the word blogging itself can sound a little odd, especially if this is your first time hearing it. You might even be confused as to why people seem so crazy about blogging. I mean, what is blogging anyway?

Is it something everyone can do? Or is it something reserved only for the intellectuals and the computer geeks? Is it something that involves math? Or maybe even science?

What is blogging?

To begin with, blogging comes from the word blog. Blog, in turn, comes from the word Web log. Are you catching on now? Good.

But in laymans terms, a blog is an online journal. It is somewhat like a Web site except that it is more easily updated and contains an archive of entries written by the blogger.

What does blogging do?

Different bloggers have different purposes. Some blog to express their innermost thoughts. They treat their blogs like diaries.

Others blog to share their knowledge about a certain subject. For example, a travel blog will contain the bloggers adventures in different places or the places he or she wishes to feature.

Some people blog as a way to earn extra income. Advertisers pay for blogs which have a lot of visitors.

Who is allowed to blog?

Anyone can blog. As long as you have access to a computer and the Internet, blogging is possible. Dont be intimidated by professionals and self-proclaimed experts. Instead, try to interact with them using your own blog as a gate pass.

Blogging helps you connect with people on a different level. Some even have a better chance to networking through blogging than through face to face encounters!

You now have an overview of what blogging is. You no longer have to ask, What is blogging? again and receive strange looks. There's still a lot more to discover about blogging and I hope you hang around long enough to learn all the answers.

Want to make money blogging and have fun at the same time? Then you need to know how to have a blog that sells like crazy. Discover the vital secrets of earning massive money with your blog at <http://www.squidoo.com/howtohaveablogthatsells> More on that on What is Blogging? Why People Are Getting Addicted To Blogging

Blogging

{mos_sb_discuss:2}